ADVERTISEMENT.

The nature of this Vocabulary, which was originally intended for private use, will be sufficiently evident without a previous explanation. It was compiled with the view of affording examples to all the rules for irregular nouns, adjectives, and verbs. The genitive case of the nouns and the conjugation of the verbs are inserted, that the scholar may be induced to have recourse to his Grammar alone for the genders of the former, and principal parts of the latter.

It is confessed that the rules for genders founded on termination are the most natural. But the utility of Lily's special rules in teaching the quantity of the penultima in the genitive case, if they are freed from his distinction of acute and long, is so obvious, that the Editor of this little book, to accommodate it to both systems, has endeavoured to be accurate in marking the quantity of that syllable.

EXPLANATION OF THE NUMERAL LETTERS.

I, signifies one, because it is the smallest letter.

V, five, because it is sometimes used for U, the fifth vowel.

X, ten, because it represents two V's.

L, fifty, from its resemblance to the lower half of C, which follows.

C, a hundred, centum.

IↃ or D, five hundred, the half of CIↃ.

M, or CIↃ, a thousand, from Mille. The latter figures joined at the top, ↀ, formed the ancient M.

If the less number is placed before the greater, the less is to be deducted from the greater; thus IV signifies one less than five, i. e. four; IX, nine; XC, ninety.

A horizontal stroke over a numeral denotes a thousand; thus V̄ marks five thousand; L̄, fifty thousand; M̄, a thousand times a thousand, or a million.
